Reviews

*This publication will be worth purchasing. It really is written in simple terms instead of difficult to understand. It's been designed in an exceptionally simple way and is particularly only right after I finished reading this ebook in which basically modified me, alter the way I believe.

We have an extra supply of oil that we carry in one compartment of the gas tank, which we feed to the motor with a pump, shooting it in at the front end on right side. We have Houk wire wheels 32 x 4, but if I was buying again would get either 30 x 4 or 30 x 3 wheels instead. The dummy hub on the rear to carry the extra wheel was made from an old inner hub with a pipe coupling shrunk on to cut the threads on for the hub cap. The cowl is made of 20-gage galvanized iron, all in one piece, bought of our local tinner. We used a large piece of building The Progressive Sheet Metal Works, of Cincinnati, O., made our tank. We placed two priming cups in the openings of the intake manifold and arranged a lever from the inside of the dash so we could open them both after the motor gets up some speed, as this extra amount of air gives the motor more speed. We took the exhaust line off and cut the top part off and had an acetylene welder add to it until it was almost twice as large as the original manifold. This was done to keep the motor cool. The Garford Engineering Co., of Elyria, made the pistons for us, and they are of the crown head type, with about .015 clearance. We purchased...
