Reviews

A whole new eBook with a brand new point of view. It is definitely simplistic but shocks in the 50 percent of the publication. I am just pleased to explain how this is the greatest ebook i have read during my very own daily life and could be he best ebook for possibly.

Purchasers can usually download a free scanned copy of the original book (without typos) from the publisher. Not indexed. Not illustrated. 1841 edition. Excerpt: . . . heard from Mr. Rose, at Ramsgate (a surgeon, recently removed thither from Woodbridge) who informed Mr. S. that a house, near his, Mr. Roses, has been similarly affected with ours, touching bells. There appears no end to the changes on these bells-- those evening bells--those morning bells. Ours have been ringing again. Last Saturday, about twenty minutes after one, all five went off, while Gurney (then and now master of the Woodbridge National School) was in the kitchen. Cook had been talking with him on the subject, and he said he should like to hear them. Wind S. W. Thermometer 49. Mallet (a painter and glazier of Woodbridge, deceased) saw the wires shake, as I am told, and went to hear if the bells had rung. BEALINGS, March 29, 1834. Thursday last, March 27, bells rung again--four bells at twenty minutes after fourxfive bells at twenty minutes before five. BEALINGS, April 14, 1834. Mr. Silver tells me, respecting the Ramsgate bells, that Mr. Rose writes, as follows: -- It is somewhat singular that the bells in the house we are just removing to, rang several days the week before last, to the great astonishment of all in the house. We cannot account for it. It was not confined to the day. The door night-bell rang once or twice in the morning early; and we could not find out that it was done by human aid. (Mr. Roses letter was dated March 4, 1834.)...
