Put up thy sword, said the cook, And fellows will we be. Then he fet to Little John The numbles of a doe, Good bread and full good wine, They ate and drank thereto. And when they had drunken well, Their troths together they plight, That they would be with Rob-in That ilke same day at night. They hied them to the treasure-house, As fast as they might gone, The locks that were of good steel They brake them every one; They took away the silver vessel, And all that they might get, Pi-eces, mas-ars, and spoons, Would they none forget; Also they took the good pence, Three hundred pound and three; And did them straight to Robin Hood, Under the green wood tree. God thee save, my dear mast-er, And Christ thee save and see. And then said Rob-in to Little John, Welcome might thou be; And also be that fair yeom-an Thou bringest there with thee. What tiding-es from Nottingham? Little John, tell thou me. Well thee greeteth the proud sher-iff, And sendeth thee here by me, His cook and his silv-er vessel, And three hundred pound and three. I make mine avow to God, said Robin, And to the Trinit-y, It was never by his good will, This good is come to me. Little John him there bethought, On a shrewed wile, Five mile in the for-est he ran, Him happ-ed at his will;...
